TURN ON NATURAL GAS—Charles E. Kerchner, superintendent of Cone Mills Power, officially turns on the natural gas for generating steam in five of the local Cone plants. Looking on are Ceasar Cone, company treasurer, and Clarence N. Cone, vice president.

STUDENT EMPLOYEES—These students are receiving summertime training and employment at White Oak Plant during vacation from school.

Cone Mills Power Plant Now Uses Natural Gas

Adhering to its reputation of having modern equipment in its Power Plant as well as in its manufacturing departments, Cone Mills Corporation on May 27 began using natural gas as fuel for operating the Power Plant at White Oak, one of the largest industrial power plants in the state.

Since the city's domestic demands must be filled first, natural gas will not be in as great use at Cone Mills in winter as in summer. Therefore, natural gas here is available on an interruptable basis.

This is the third type of fuel which has been in use at the Power Plant which furnishes generation for White Oak Plant, Revolution Division Flannel and Rayon Plants, Proximity Plant and Print Works Plant. The first was hand fired coal, used in the boilers installed in 1905. In 1928, the company changed to the use of pulverized coal.

There are four large steam generating units in the plant, two of which were already equipped for the use of natural gas. One of these is capable of producing more than 180,000 pounds of steam per hour. The other three can produce 100,000 pounds of steam each hour.

One of the two units not already equipped for natural gas has already been converted to this use, and the other, now on coal, will be changed later.

All together the units are capable of producing 450 pounds of pressure and a temperature of 750 degrees.

Lt. and Mrs. Percy S. Gamble of 1430 Overbrook Drive, Burlington, and their daughter, Mrs. Andrew Burgess, had a special interest in Coronation Day, because they are British citizens.

Five British flags flew over the Gamble home in Burlington during Coronation week. These were brought by Lt. Gamble when he moved to this country from Folkstone, England, in 1948. The couple moved to America to be near their only child.

REGAL ROBES OF NYLON—British Nylon Spinners, Ltd., came up with this viscountess' robe and coronet made of "nylon velvet" and "nylon ermine" at the British Industries Fair. This should be a boon to nobility who for many generations have had to fuss with having moth-eaten regal robes repaired for their triumphal entry into Westminster Abbey whenever a British monarch is crowned.

Herman Cone Honored At State With Degree, Doctor of Textile Science

At the annual commencement rites at North Carolina State College last Sunday, Herman Cone, president of Cone Mills Corporation, received the honorary degree of doctor of textile science. Each year State College honors outstanding alumni and others who have made notable contributions to the state's and nation's progress. Mr. Cone was one of six so honored, each for accomplishments in a separate field.

Dean Malcolm E. Campbell of the college's School of Textiles presented Mr. Cone and read the following citation:

"Mr. Cone was born in New York City in 1895 and was educated in the public school of Greensboro, North Carolina, and the University of North Carolina. He began his career as a salesman for Cone Export & Commission Company, textile manufacturers and merchants. In 1917, he became treasurer of Proximity Manufacturing Company, in Greensboro, North Carolina. His business career was later interrupted while he served as an Ensign in the United States Navy in World War I. At the close of the war, he returned to Greensboro and resumed his position with Proximity. In 1938, he was made President of this company, now a part of Cone Mills Corporation; and in 1950, he became Chairman of the Board of Cone Mills Corporation, as well as its President. The group of textile mills which he directs is one of the largest manufacturers of fabrics in the world.

"Mr. Cone is a public-spirited man, having been President of the Greensboro Rotary Club, Community Chest, Boy Scout Council, and Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the Board of Directors of Greensboro Industries, Inc. He is now President of the Moses Cone Memorial Hospital. During World War II, he gave liberally of his time and energy to various government boards and agencies on a volunteer basis. He has served as President of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association and of the North Carolina Cotton Manufacturers Association, as Chairman of the Board of the Cotton Textile Institute, and as a director of the National Association of Manufacturers. As a director of the North Carolina Textile Foundation, he has been influential in many recent developments in textile education in North Carolina.

"As an industrial leader, as a civic leader and benefactor, and as one who has served his Nation in times of need, Mr. Cone is considered worthy of recognition by this Institution.

"Because of these outstanding accomplishments, I commend him to you for the honorary degree of doctor of textile science."

Recipients of honorary doctorates in addition to Mr. Cone were:

L. Y. Ballentine of Raleigh, North Carolina's commissioner of agriculture and former lieutenant governor, doctor of agriculture; J. Warren Smith of Raleigh, State director of vocational education, doctor of vocational education; Col. George W. Gillette of Wilmington, executive director of the States Ports Authority, doctor of engineering; Inman F. Eldredge of New Orleans, La., consulting forester and former regional director of the forest survey, U. S. Forest Service, doctor of forest science; and Prof. Walter Gropius of Cambridge, Mass., retired head of Harvard University's Graduate School of Design.

Textiles Main Feature Of British Industries Fair

(This is another in a series of articles by the Manager of The Textorian, relating impressions of her recent trip abroad.)

This was the year for textiles at the annual British Industries Fair April 27-May 8 in London at Earls Court. With the Coronation scheduled for one month later, fabric designers had a field day for artistic presentations in the royal motif.

Nylon Terylene and Ardil were among the modern fabrics receiving the most attention from manufacturers and buyers.

Nylon Terylene and Ardil were ly in red velvet and white fur fabric in a viscountess' gown and coronet to be worn at Westminster Abbey on June 2. Considering the fact that many a nobleman and noblewoman has had to repair an old moth eaten robe for the crowning of each monarch, the new nylon ones, which are just as imposing as the real McCoy, should make quite a hit with the bluebloods of Britain. Featured by British Nylon Spinners, Ltd., these, of course, are not for popular consumption.

Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., featured Terylene for many different uses, suits, shirts, dresses, curtains, etc. Terylene polyester fibre is a British invention, having been first made by J. R. Whinfield and J. T. Dickson in 1941. I. C. I. acquired the exclusive world rights to the patents, except here in the

Sixteenth St. Baptists Open Church June 21

There will be 41 Sunday School classrooms to take care of an average attendance of 600 in Sunday School. This building will be used for all the educational purposes of the church.

The new sanctuary is one of the most beautiful found anywhere in the city of Greensboro, and is the TEXTILE SECTION—Shown above is a general view of the ground floor of the textile section of the British Industries Fair at Earls Court in London. Each year the B.I.F. features a phase of British industry. This year it was textiles. Not only were textiles exhibited from the British Isles but also from areas in the entire Commonwealth, such as Cyprus, African Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Malta, Pakistan, New Zealand, Union of South Africa, Rhodesia and Canada. Many of the designs were in royal motif, paying tribute to Her Majesty the Queen in her Coronation Year.

DETAIL—This is shield number 1 in the historical texture tapestry shown by I.C.I. at the B.I.F. It symbolically depicts the early history of England, showing a Stone Age man and crude weapons. Next comes a knight on horseback and a castle representing power. Justice and Magna Charta are indicated by a scroll and seal, while gothic arches show a new spirit in religion and architecture.

Ninth Grade Girls May Join New Club

All girls in the ninth grade next year are eligible to join a new Jr. Tri-Hi-Y Club now in the process of organization. The first meeting was held last Tuesday at Proximity YMCA and the next one will be on Tuesday, June 16. All girls who are interested in becoming members are asked to attend.

One of the first activities planned is a week's stay at Camp Herman, according to adviser, Mrs. Stoni Johnson.

HISTORICAL TAPESTRY—Tibor Reich, noted English designer, is responsible for this historical tapestry design which gives highlights in the history of Britain. Made of Ardil/Spun Silk blend, the tapestry is hand-Jacquard woven and hand screen printed. It was specially commissioned by Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., in honor of the Coronation, and was on display at the British Industries Fair.

Maybe of Great Benefit

It is not the desire of the TEXTORIAN to unduly prolong discussion in connection with the recent unfortunate occurrence in connection with the Mayor, the City Council, the City Manager and the Director of Public Services for the City of Greensboro.

Were it not for the fact that fundamental principles are involved we would be satisfied for the matter to drop completely. Even though the Mayor, in writing finis to the matter, stated in effect that if he had had all the facts before the development would not have taken place. We do not consider such an admission as justification for the Mayor's action as it would appear that it would be the Mayor's duty to know all the facts and circumstances before he even plans or tries to execute such drastic action.

On the other hand, if this unfortunate situation will lead to the reappraisal of public officials' responsibilities, the occurrence will not have been in vain and will prove to be well worthwhile despite the fact that damage has been done both to the city and to a valuable department head.

During such situations the rumor mill is always busy. Therefore, we cannot believe all that we hear. There are indications, however, that this is not the first time that secret planning has taken place. In fact it is the opinion of many that there have been many instances in which important negotiations have been developed secretively.

The responsibility for the operation of the city government does not belong solely to the Mayor or a few members of the City Council. That is one fact that should be thoroughly understood.

For a long time we have thought that the Mayor and City Council have spent too much of their time performing functions that strictly belong to the City Manager. It is our opinion that we have a most capable City Manager and it is our belief that if the City Council would set policy and permit the City Manager to operate the city that we would have a strong and efficient city administration. In operating the affairs of the city in accordance with the policies of the City Council, we feel that the responsibility for the efficiency of the personnel under city government should be the City Manager's.

We again repeat that if a lesson has been learned and all entrusted with city government will dedicate their efforts and judgment to the impartial, unprejudiced benefit of the city in a manner consistent with the honorable discharge of public duty, then the recent unfortunate and unpleasant situation can prove of great benefit to our city.

LISTEN AMERICANS!

...by George S. Benson

President of Harding College

The American people are being warned by some of our most distinguished leaders that our sovereignty as a nation and our freedom as individuals are gravely endangered by international "treaty law" now being written in various United Nations agencies. In fact, 63 U. S. Senators consider the threat so grave they are co-sponsoring the so-called Bricker Amendment to the Constitution which would erect safeguards against international tampering with our American institutions of freedom.

Boiled down to its essence, the proposed amendment stipulates that any provisions of a "treaty" which conflict with the U. S. Constitution or our statutory law shall not be of any force and effect in our nation. The provisions of some "treaties" certainly do conflict with basic American principles. And they would become the overriding law of our land if two-thirds of our U. S. Senate approved. In effect this would amend our constitution without permission of the states and citizenry.

The American Bar Association, the American Legion and many other distinguished service organizations are supporting the Bricker Amendment. Frank E. Holman, recent president of the American Bar Association, says:

"Unless this vast program of treaty-law making is brought within proper limits by an appropriate constitutional amendment, American rights, both state and individual, and the American form of government will be substantially altered, if not destroyed."

Considerable danger lies in the fact that most of the countries formulating "treaties" in the U. N. have the socialist form of government and economic system. The U. S. is the only major capitalist nation. We are outvoted overwhelmingly on ideological and economic issues. Consequently the "treaties" contain, in many instances, the mandates needed for the establishment of Socialism. The Bricker Amendment would not hinder our Senate approving "treaties," but it would nullify any provisions of them that are contrary to our established law.

Frank Holman, who is an outstanding constitutional lawyer, says that without the safeguard of such an amendment, the economic and social structure of our nation is endangered. "When the problem of world peace is looked at from all sides," he said, "the necessity for preserving America's identity, integrity, and strength becomes more and more apparent, and one is impelled to the conclusion that a strong, independent and free America is not only the best for its own citizens, but the best guaranty of world peace and world order."

That is a sound conclusion.

Health For All

Noise in the Night

Millions of Americans suffer every night from an ailment they don't have themselves. It is probably the only malady known to man that brings anguish to the non-afflicted, without in the least disturbing the afflicted, if that's the right word for the estimated 20,000,000 Americans who snore.

Audiometer readings of uninhibited snorers have gone as high as 40 decibels, about equal to a noisy street corner in the business district. Although doctors do not usually consider snoring a serious ailment, research shows that sounds of much less volume than 40 decibels increase the blood pressure and muscle tension of the nearest sleeper. It is an open question how many decibels, night after night, the snorer's roommate can take before he is driven into general debility, neurosis, a separate bedroom, or the divorce court.

Short of divorce, what can the suffering victim do? First the doctor should be consulted to find out whether there is any abnormal condition of the palatal tissues, nose, and throat passages which can be corrected. If this possibility is eliminated, the snoring may be caused by too much smoking or drinking, or overweight. In such cases, the snorer must cooperate fully, hard as it may be for him to make sacrifices to get rid of an ailment which doesn't bother him in the slightest.

If minor surgery, antibiotics, and self-control fail to bring quiet to the tortured household, a small pillow under the nape of the neck may turn the trick. If this fails, there are some 300 patented snore-preventing gadgets, from a rubber ball clipped to the snorer's pajama tops to keep him from sleeping on his back to ear plugs for the harrassed mate.

Pythian Echoes

by R. Cole Lee

The eighty-second convention of the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias meeting last Tuesday and Wednesday at the Sir Raleigh Hotel, Raleigh, is but another page in the illustrious history of the Order. This session was sponsored by the Clayton Lodge where the Pythian Home for Children is located. Some of the highlights consisted in the conferring Grand Lodge Rank; Supreme Chancellor Sheldon M. Roper's address; Supreme Treasurer Richard L. Meares' report; the Grand Chancellor's Banquet in the ballroom of the Sir Walter.

The entire gathering was greatly pleased with the speech of Barbara Ann Massey, winner in the State Speaking Contest, on the subject "Is Safety Necessary on the Public Highway?" Another high-spot at the banquet was the address by Edmund Harding. Mr. Harding is without doubt one of the best humorous speakers in the State. When a man can keep you interested and laughing for a solid hour, brother, he is bound to be unusual. The Lodge will have the opportunity to learn more of the convention in detail by attending the meeting next Monday evening. I will make this added remark that the ladies of the attending Pythians were honored at a luncheon at the Carolina Country Club and at a tea at the Governor's Mansion with Mrs. William B. Umstead as hostess.

The latest report on the drive for the Boiler Fund for the Pythian Children's Home is that the local Cone Lodge has contributed the sum of $400.00 to date. Many of the fellows still have time to come forth with their liberal donations and help swell our part of the state drive to such a place as to be a definite challenge for other Lodge to match or do better.

The regular monthly gathering of the D.O.K.K. members will be held at the local castle hall June 16th. Supper will be served at 7:00 p.m. Plans will be made for the July 7th Ceremonial, when John M. Lawrence, Imperial Basha, of Oklahoma, will be our special guest of honor.

The other day I overheard a man make a remark that created in me a little indignation. His remark was simply this: "Gosh darn, I hate to go to work." The first thought that came to my mind was that, many, you don't know how foolish you really are. When one considers that his eyes are clear, his hands and feet perfect, his body strong and his appetite good, when he walks out and see the wretchedness in this world, how could he help but sneak back to work with shame in his heart. When I see the sufferers in the hospital, the maimed, the blind, the incurably sick, my self-pity stabs me like a stiletto. Work! I sincerely hope that each and every one of us will have to work so long as we live, for this is a desire that has a double meaning. So long as man is able to work, he is sure to be well, and health is the biggest wish that can come to any man's mind and heart. Idleness would soon create insomnia and eventually insanity. A job is a big blessing. Good health and a perfect body are worth more than all the wealth in the world. Personally, I would not dare to complain in the presence of God about having to work. Finding fault, kicking and grumbling about having to work is criticizing God for giving to you the health and strength to be able to work. Before you say again, my friend, "Gosh darn, I hate to go to work," think in whose presence you are making such a remark when you do and start counting your blessings. I think your tune will have a merrier sound.

Monday Last Day To Register For G'boro Evening Coll.

Monday, June 15, is the last day students may register for the Summer term of Greensboro Evening College, division of Guilford College. Classes in high school and business education divisions will begin Monday also. The term giving college credit ends August 5; the term for high school and business education divisions ends August 28.

The 1953 Summer Session provides nine full weeks of instruction in the undergraduate college credit program and eleven weeks in the high school and business education divisions. College credit courses will be integrated with the regular Guilford College Summer Session.

The merger with Guilford College on March 15, 1953, through its rich educational experience, full accreditation, strong faculty, physical plant, and substantial endowment, brings increased and enriched educational opportunities to adult citizens of the Greensboro area.

Courses in addition to those listed may be offered if there is sufficient demand. The administration reserves the right to withdraw any course for which there is an enrollment of fewer than eight students.

Individuals interested in enrolling should contact the Evening College office at 519 West Washington Street, Greensboro, North Carolina (Phone 7220).

All areas of instruction are approved for veterans pursuing training under the G. I. Bill. Application and other V. A. forms are available at the Evening College office. Requests for training should be filed several weeks, if possible, prior to the expected date of enrollment.

Veterans pursuing training at government expense are required to maintain satisfactory attendance and scholastic achievement.

Two Motion Pictures At Y's Next Week

Two motion pictures, "The Mark of 'C'" and "Pacific Islands of World War II," will be shown at Proximity YMCA on Tuesday, June 16, and at White Oak YMCA on Thursday, June 18.

"Pacific Islands of World War II," a color picture, is a graphic and beautifully filmed picture showing the Pacific War islands as they are today—and as they were during the great battles of the war. Official combat photography from all services recalls the struggle for the Pacific on land, sea, and in the air . . . today's record provides the contrast and reports on the execution of our trusteeship in the Pacific. (Courtesy: Chrysler Corporation)

Factually authentic and packed with human interest, "The Mark of 'C'", technicolor film, tells the real story of a hero of American Revolutionary days, a baker named Christopher Ludwick. His mark of "C" stood for good bread. You follow his adventures from Valley Forge to Yorktown. The story of today's bread completes this dramatic, true film story that will interest everyone. For further information contact any member of the Y staff or Wayne Cates, day camp director.

Boys' Day Camp To Offer Many Activities

There are 12 more vacancies for the first period of Boys' Day Camp, which begins June 29. Boys interested in going to Day Camp should fil out application cards and turn them in at either YMCA. A place will then be reserved.

Money for the first period is payable now or by June 26, so don't wait—get your card in today!

The second and third periods are also filling up, so don't keep waiting to get your application card in. The first 30 boys will be the quota.

TEXTILES FEATURE

United States where DuPont produces a similar fibre, Dacron.

One of the most interesting things at the British Industries Fair was an Ardil/silk historical texture tapestry, designed by Tibor Reich, famous modern artist who heads a handweaving plant at Stratford-upon-Avon. This tapestry and a detail showing the first shield are reproduced on this page. There is only one piece of this hand-woven fabric, a special commission to the artist by Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd.

The tapestry is made from a mixture of Ardil and spun silk, interwoven with a non-tarnishing metallic thread. It is hand-Jacquard woven and hand-screen printed—the first time these techniques have been combined.

Four shields on the tapestry show the history of Britain from primitive times to the present day.

On the first shield a Stone Age man is seen with some of his crude weapons. Next comes a knight on horseback and a castle which represents power. Justice and Magna Charta are indicated by a great scroll and seal, while gothic arches show a new spirit in religion and architecture.

The story on the second shield symbolizes the end of the Wars of the Roses and tells of the discoveries, the literature and the pioneering spirit of the Elizabethans.

The Industrial Age is the theme of the third shield. Factory chimneys and Stephenson's Rocket stand in sharp contrast to the delicate furniture of Chippendale and the top hats and flowing dresses of the period.

The last shield portrays the Victorian era, with the penny postage and gaslighting, and goes on to illustrate dignified Edwardian horseless-carriages and the introduction of electric lighting. Then it brings the story up to the present day showing a television screen across which sweeps a jet aircraft. Finally, the future is indicated by a space ship rocketing towards new planets and new discoveries.

latest design in church architecture. It will be the only Baptist Church in Greensboro with modern air-conditioning. There are no outside steps to climb on entering the sanctuary, with only one step from the ground level. This was built in keeping in mind the needs of older people.

The opening services will be followed with a week of preaching with many of the former pastors returning to bring messages during the following week.

STUDENT EMPLOYEES

Proximity Dyeing and Finishing will be the instructors. During plant visits, the men in charge of the departments being seen, or their assistants, will act as guides.

Designed to broaden the young employee's knowledge of the textile industry and its opportunities, the course covers a six-week period with classes meeting twice a week. It has been planned to add to the pleasure of accomplishment for the student employees who enroll.

The class for first shift people begins Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the White Oak Office Conference Room. The second shift group will have its first meeting on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in the classroom over the Company's employment office at Revolution. Regular times and places of meeting will be planned by each group at its first meeting.
